A team of international and New York-based BTS fans spent last Sunday night rapping the boys and girls of their idol group — “GOOD DAY,” the BTS song that has steadily risen to No. 1 on Billboard's Top 100 this summer. Y.J. Kim, a 25-year-old from Whittier, Calif., who works with a television production company in New York City, said he had a passion for k-pop ever since a trip to Korea allowed him to watch the “Big Hit Summer Concert” in Seoul, South Korea. Since then, Kim has been a huge fan of BTS, with the group's debut album “Love Yourself: Answer,” and has been following its worldwide success, taking part in the company's fan meeting tours and watching its “DNA” series on Netflix. “They have crazy dance moves. Every single word the fans are yelling out, BTS fans are saying in these memes,” Kim said. “They’re just having fun. The energy they bring to their shows and the way they represent the music... it’s all just great. “I

Description: The GT PRO is our flagship application. It is a powerful software solution to run 2d- or 3d gas turbine performance calculations and parametric studies, it is a. The GT PRO is the world's best application for PC based gas turbine performance calculations and parametric studies.Q: Is there a "dual" of the Gabriel Theorem for groups? Recall the Gabriel Theorem for finitely generated algebras, which asserts that any finitely generated algebra R over a field k can be written as kQ/I , where Q is a finite-dimensional k -algebra and I is the ideal of R such that Q is a free R -module. Are there finitely generated algebras A , over a field k , that can be written as kQ/I , where Q is a free module as a k -vector space but as an algebra is not a finitely generated k -algebra? If A is of this form, is there a finitely generated algebra B and an

A - B -bimodule M such that $B \otimes_A M$ is a finitely generated algebra over k , but the algebra $B \otimes_A M$ is not finitely generated? My thoughts I have been thinking about the following situation: $R = k[x_{ij} : i, j \in \mathbb{N}] \supseteq I := \supseteq \cdots \supseteq I_n :=$ where $n \in \mathbb{N}$ is fixed and one constructs the ascending chain by setting $I_{i+1} := I_i \cap k[x_{ij} : i, j \in \mathbb{N} \text{ and } i \geq i+1]$.
