TunesKit iPhone Data Recovery 2.2.0.25 Crack .Q: How to check if character followed by one or two digits is a number in PHP I am trying to validate each character in a string separated by commas. The validation should be done only if the last character is a number, which will be added to a total sum. Let's say I have this text: $str = '3, 12.' (can be a maximum of 2 commas) and I have to check if this '3' is followed by a number (positive or negative). The conditions are: $str == '3, 12.' => ok $str == '3, 12' => ok $str == '3 12, 12' => not ok $str == '3, 12.' => not ok '3' followed by a number is not ok. How can I do it? I've tried this: preg_match('/^[0-9]+$/', $str) But it doesn't seem to work A: Try: if (strpos($str, ',') == -1) and a lot of other people...and you have to keep shopping around. The problem is that you need to decide what you actually want in the computer so you can look at the kind of PC it would run - you may not want to spend much on an HTPC (home theatre PC) if you prefer watching TV on your telly, for example, but you might be considering a gaming system for which it makes more sense to spend a bit more.
