What's New In CSS3 Gradients?

The application CSS3 Gradients was created by Ulises Huerta. It was created to be used as a command line application, in the same way that Fireworks Composer does. It is easy to use and offers all the necessary steps to create all the required settings. In the left you can create a new project with all the necessary settings to create CSS3 Gradients (UI, orientation, CSS file name, etc.). You can directly see all the items in the project on the right, including the background that is created in a gradient and the options available to display images, logos and fonts. You can change the value of the gradient or apply transparency to the created images. You can switch back and forth between the list of projects that you have created in your project folder and the project that is currently active, thus it is very easy to change the settings and carry on working.
